SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 15.—The crushing pincers drive by Allied forces to destroy the bulk of the German army in northwest France was pressed relentlessly today by American, British and Canadian troops on the battle-seared fields of Normandy, with the prongs which threaten to completely trap the Nazis being drawn steadily closed between Argentan and Falaise.

Other allied forces to the west and north steadily herded the Germans into an ever-tightening pocket. (Continued on Page Two)

Washington Roundup

(International News Service)

President Roosevelt was charged by congressional Republicans today with using his official position as commander-in-chief for campaign purposes. They cited the president's recent Hawaiian and Aleutian trips, his fourth term nomination speech from San Diego and the radio war review at Bremerton, Wash., as evidence of their charge. While expressing anger at the move, they said there was nothing that could be done about it.

Diplomatic experts in Washington were inclined today to believe that Soviet Vice Commissar Maxim Litvinov was the author of an article in an obscure Russian journal outlining Russia's ideas for a world security organization. If this disguise is correct, Washington is elated because it clears the air of what Russia actually wants and expects in the postwar world. The article, written by "N. Malin", was obviously prepared, experts said, by someone with a comprehensive understanding of the former league of nations and world peace organizations.

The house opens debate today on the Canner surplus property disposal bill to supervise purchases of an estimated 60 to 100 billion dollars in excess war goods. In the senate, a proposal sponsored by Sen. Johnson of Colo., specifying that surplus war goods be "padlocked" for five years after the war, was expected to be turned down in committee.

Peacetime production of a limited supply of civilian goods began today under the watchful eye of the war manpower commission. WMC had veto power over all such production so it will not interfere with vital war output.

Drive In Southern France Is Logical Move To Beat Nazis

By CAPTAIN JOHN H. CRAIG
(Written Especially For International News Service)

This morning's landings on the Mediterranean coast of France for some time have been expected as a logical move to exploit the successes of American-British forces in the north and to bring more of the vastly superior Allied strength to bear on the Nazi armies in France, already reeling under the weight of the United Nations' offensive.

Rome announcements place the landings as "between Nice and Marseilles", while Nazi propaganda broadcasts name Bormes, a small town east of Toulon, as the site of the new thrust. This would locate this morning's offensive in the eastern third of France's Mediterranean coastline, within about 100 miles of the Italian border.

Primary Objectives
Obvious primary objectives of such a campaign would be Toulon, French naval Gibraltar of the Mediterranean, and Marseilles, France's greatest port, about 50 miles to the west, near the mouth of the strategic Rhone river. The capture of these two strongholds would result in the freeing of the whole Mediterranean area from the Nazis and would pave the way for much more ambitious moves in the rapidly developing battle of France. Probably the site of the present landings was chosen to take advantage of the great airfields of Corsica, not much more than 100 miles away. These can render the close bomber and fighter support by Allied air power which has proved the decisive element in operations in Normandy and Brittany.

Drive Up Rhone
The taking of Toulon and Marseilles would render possible a drive up the valleys of the Rhone and Saone rivers across the whole of France to the Marne and the Vosges mountains. Such a drive would take the whole German position in (Continued on Page Two)

Halmahera Is Badly Battered By U. S. Bombs

Jap Stronghold Is "Practically Neutralized" By Repeated U. S. Air Attacks

By GEORGE LAIT
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HQ, NEW GUINEA, Aug. 15.—The strategic Jap base at Halmahera, last major Jap stronghold between Dutch New Guinea and the Philippines, was described as "practically neutralized" today.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Tuesday morning communique, which reported the latest of a series of devastating air strikes against the Halmahera, said:

"His airfields, intermediate bases and practically neutralized, his maritime forces largely interdicted and his ground troops immobilized in their present positions."

Main Defense Threatened
The communique added that the flexibility of the Halmahera base was gone and that its function as a reserve pool for other Jap bases in the Southwest Pacific was done, adding:

"Should he (the Jap) fail to retrieve his weakness, the main line of defense for his conquered empire in the Southwest Pacific, extending through the Halmaheras and the Philippines, is threatened." (Continued on Page Two)

Chinese Retake Some Positions

CHUNGKING, Aug. 15.—(INS)—Chinese forces in Hunan province held several strategic points north of Leiyang on the Canton-Hankow railroad today after recapturing the positions from Jap units. A Chinese high command communique revealed the recapture of the installations some 30 miles below Hengyang and told of a Chinese drive on Liling, 75 miles northeast of Hengyang, which also recaptured several important positions. The announcement revealed the Chinese elements in the south have nearly completed preparations for an attack on Lungling, important town on the Burma road.

The second white Russian army under Gen. Metvel Zakharov swept through to storm and take Oswiec, 27 miles from the East Prussian rail center of Lyck.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 15.—Another chapter in the tragic life of Barbara Hutton, heiress to the Woolworth millions whose money has brought everything except happiness, was written today with the announcement of her separation from motion picture star Cary Grant.

Mrs. Grant has moved out of her home to live with a friend until her matrimonial affairs have been straightened out, she revealed in verifying the separation. She had Grant married July 8, 1942 after a courtship of nearly two years.

They had planned to separate in June, but it was postponed when her former husband, Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow, filed suit in connection with the rearing of their child, nine-year-old Lance, and then later went to Vancouver, B. C., taking the boy with him. Grant declared he would stand by Barbara and help her in the forthcoming legal battles for her child.

Ten Nazi Air Bases Bombed

American Bombers Strike
At Landing Strips In Belgium And Germany

By JOSEPH THOMAS
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Aug. 15.—American heavy bombers, striking on the heels of a comparatively strong attack by RAF Mosquitos upon Berlin last night, blasted 14 Nazi air bases and landing strips in Belgium and Germany by daylight today, leaving a scene of desolation in their wake.

U. S. Air Force Headquarters, announcing that "very strong forces of Portresses and Liberators" carried out the attacks, thus indicated that gigantic squadrons probably totaling more than 1,000 bombers took part.

Excellent Results

Results were described as "generally excellent." Targets included seven "air bases" and three "airdromes," all bombed visually, thanks to ideal weather conditions. During the night, the RAF sent block-buster carrying Mosquitos over Berlin in what official statements indicated was an assault of considerable strength. The assault was swiftly delivered and of the saturation pattern which the air minister labeled "well concentrated." Large fires and great explosions were seen, returning pilots said.

Landing Forces Are Progressing As Scheduled

(BULLETIN)

ROME, Aug. 15.—By mid-morning all Allied landings in Southern France were proceeding successfully and according to schedule, meeting only light ground opposition, official spokesmen announced at headquarters today.

No aerial opposition has been encountered and the Allied airborne operation now has been successfully executed, they added.

The three-nation drive which struck inland from the Riviera beaches now is striking hard to make contact with the paratroop formations charged with blocking any possible Nazi efforts to mount a heavy counter-assault. Allied ships are continuing to pour men, weapons and supplies ashore to bolster the striking power for an all-out offensive thrust from the beachhead sectors.

Patton Commands Third U. S. Army In French Action

A SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE COMMAND POST IN NORMANDY, Aug. 15.—(INS)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower announced today that Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., "Old Blood and Guts" of the Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns, is leading the American Third Army, which has driven roughshod over the Germans in lower Normandy and Brittany. Since August 1 the Third Army had effected the cutoff of the Breton peninsula and helped close a trap on the German Seventh Army with a spectacular sweep northward from Le Mans.

'We're Still Long Way From Rhine'

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(INS)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared today that the Germans are "taking a good beating" now, but warned the Allied nations that the end of the war is not just a matter of weeks. In a battlefield dispatch from Normandy, Reuter's relayed Eisenhower's statement.

"The Germans are taking a good beating, but anyone attempting to measure the duration of the war in weeks is basing his belief on hunches and wishful thinking. Not logic," the commander-in-chief of Allied armies in Western France declared. He added, in the same vein: "We're still a long way from the Rhine."

Over 14,000 Airborne Troops Take Part In Huge New Invasion

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ROME, Aug. 15.—Landings by Allied armies in southern France to augment initial assault waves of amphibious forces and paratroops who already have seized a considerable stretch of beaches between Nice and Marseille across a front of more than 100 miles preceded without interruption today.

Advanced headquarters in the Mediterranean theater said that the additional landings were being carried out successfully and according to plan against only light opposition.

The invasion, preceded by shattering aerial assaults along the Riviera, bombardment of coastal positions by Allied warships and the landing of at least 14,000 airborne troops behind the designated beachheads, was carried out as a complementary campaign to the drive in French Normandy where the Germans are being rocked back on their heels.

Headquarters disclosed that the assault against southern France is under the personal leadership of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of Allied invasion forces, and the campaign is directly linked with the battle to destroy the German armies in northwest France.

The American, British and French troops which went ashore from an armada of more than 800 United Nations ships landed in accordance with an original plan which Gen. Eisenhower began to draw up before Christmas, 1943.

The entire operation, designed as a large-scale envelopment drive aimed at smashing the German armies in France, was carefully and vigorously planned and repeatedly rehearsed. The troops which participated made use of the recent Allied experiences in Normandy and employed knowledge gained in the landings at Sicily, Salerno, Anzio and on the island of Elba.

The coordination of air, navy and ground forces which effected the landings today was described at headquarters as a record achievement.

(The initial thrust, according to the German radio, was made at Bormes, 20 miles east of Toulon and astride the main coastal railroad leading from Marseille to the Italian frontier. The Nazi agency DNB said other landing attempts were made at Toulon and Cannes.)

German Report Says Invasion East Of Toulon

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(INS)—The German radio, making its first statement on the Allied landings in southern France, reported this morning that the invasion took place at Bormes, east of Toulon. Bormes, given by the Germans as the location of the invasion landings, is situated some 23 miles east of Toulon. Nazi-held port and naval base southeast of Marseille where a large portion of the French fleet was scuttled on Nov. 27, 1942.

First Landings Meet With Small Nazi Resistance

(BULLETIN)
NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(INS)—First eyewitness account of the opening of a third front against Adolf Hitler's battered Wehrmacht reported this morning that there was a minimum of German resistance to the Allied landings on the southern coast of France.

Allied correspondent Chester Morrison, broadcasting over CBS from a tank landing ship off the beachhead against which the first landings were made, said:

"There was a minimum of German resistance when the first wave of American infantry landed on the beach."

"In less than one hour, one company of the first wave had reached its first objective."

"In less than two hours, seven waves of infantry had been put ashore. Seven waves of about 2,000 men or more in France before 10:00 o'clock this morning (4:00 a. m. EWT)."

Superior Court Judge Resigns

HARRISBURG, Aug. 15.—(INS)—Judge Charles E. Kenworthy, 43-year-old jurist, resigned today, relinquishing an $18,000-a-year seat on the superior court bench today and retired to private practice.

Gov. Edward Martin accepted the 43-year-old jurist's resignation, tendered August 8, but indicated a successor would not be named until after the general election in November.

Judge Kenworthy, who was appointed to the bench April 15, 1941, by former Gov. Arthur H. James and then elected to a 10-year term in the same year, joined the Philadelphia law firm of former Attorney General William A. Schnader.

The retiring jurist was born in Milford, Pike county, March 7, 1901, and was the youngest judge to sit on the appellate court.

The latest raid at Halmahera saw Yank bombs score a direct hit on a Jap installation, probably an ammunition dump, which spewed flame and smoke 8,000 feet in the air and touched off many other explosions on the ground.

Other Points Blasted
As Yank bombers battered Halmahera, other planes blistered the by-passed base of Manokwari on Dutch New Guinea with 60 tons of explosives. Personnel areas and supply centers rocked under the assault, while five barges in Macclure gulch were destroyed along with many supply-laden trucks.

First official word of the lethal "Black Widow" night fighters in the Southwest Pacific area came when General MacArthur revealed that they had shot down an enemy bomber over Black Island.

Other Yank bombers hit Palau Island without enemy opposition while many fires were started during a 20-ton raid on Timor.

Aerial reconnaissance spotted many small parties of Jap troops trying to escape eastward from the Aitape trap on British New Guinea. Air and naval units bombed and harassed these parties.

She went for a drive and when she returned she found Cary had moved back into the house. It was then that she herself moved out.

When Miss Hutton was very young she married Prince Alex Meliani, who was killed in a motor accident shortly after they had parted. Then she married Haugwitz-Reventlow, a former Danish nobleman. Barbara has charged in a counter-action for custody of Lance that her life with the count brought her unhappiness and that through his influence she foolishly gave up her American citizenship.

in an Allied trap in Normandy, was spearheaded by strong parachute contingents.

Seven waves of infantry represented over 2,000 men were reported to have landed in the initial thrust at dawn after parachutists dropped to earth with instruction to prevent the Germans from occupying high ground overlooking the landing beaches.

Powerful air fleets which had softened the invaded areas for three consecutive days went back into action at dawn to shatter enemy defenses and mighty squadrons of warships, made up of Dutch, Greek, Polish, Canadian, French and Belgian naval units as well as units of the American and British fleets, plastered military installations.

The London Evening Star said it was understood that the invasion forces were under command of American Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, deputy supreme commander to Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson in the Mediterranean theater.

Invasion Convoys Assemble
The invasion convoys came from Italy, Africa, Corsica and Sardinia and assembled at pre-arranged assembly points in the early morning to effect the landings at exactly the scheduled time.

The entire strategic air force in the Mediterranean theater switched its attack to the first landing zone, dropping thousands of tons of high explosives on gun emplacements, strong points and coastal works as well as troop concentrations, supply dumps and beach obstacles. Other aircraft pounded inland airfields and lines of communications to immobilize the German air and ground forces.

Battleships, cruisers, destroyers and other warships of the Allied navies saw the Allied armies on land. The entire responsibility for putting the men ashore was in the hands of the Navy and the naval commander ordered the assault of the landing areas to proceed relentlessly.

Early Resistance Slight
Initial reports said that, after devastating assaults from the sea and air, German resistance was either negligible or only slight.

"It was a gigantic operation, but nearly all our men are alive," according to a report by an NBC correspondent.

The operations were carried out in calm, clear weather.

The strongest air armada ever assembled in the Mediterranean theater, after three consecutive days of priming, swept the Riviera skies and sea lane approaches, ringing the beachheads with a curfew of bombs and blasting Nazi defenses in a gigantic air assault.

The invasion is being carried out at several points along a wide coastal front. Since daybreak, the invasion fleet has been pouring ashore great masses of troops and equipment. Returning airmen say that the resistance thus far has been either slight or negligible.

The airborne paratrooper forces that took part in the invasion of southern France was the largest that has been dropped in any Allied operation of the war.

Airborne Force 14,000
The second airborne force employed in the invasion consisted of more than 14,000 men.

The landings, supported by a terrific bombardment from Allied warships, have taken place over a considerable area of a 100-mile stretch of beach between Nice and Marseilles.

The German radio reported that the landings took place at Bormes, 20 miles east of Toulon, located on the slopes of a hill surrounded by a ruined castle, along the main coastal railroad from Marseille to the Italian frontier.

"DNB, the German news agency, said that hundreds of gliders participated in the operations, claiming that some of the landings had 'already been repulsed at some points,' and that 'violent fighting' is raging at others."

"DNB added that other landing attempts were taking place between Toulon and Cannes and that warships are shelling the area between Cannes and Nice."

"Going Extremely Well"
"An Exchange Telegraph dispatch to London from Allied headquarters in Italy said that the initial Allied landing was southwest of Cannes. The dispatch added that the operation was 'going extremely well.'"

"The over-all invasion force, according to Exchange, was bigger than that which participated in the Normandy operation and it reached its target without detection or interference from enemy planes and submarines."

The assault on southern France was led by specially trained Allied troops many of them veterans of previous invasions and campaigns in the Mediterranean theater.

Paratroopers were landed first to disrupt enemy communications.

Regular infantry regiments went ashore from the invasion fleet at several points along the wide front. The paratroop units landed two miles inshore at 6:50 a. m. (12:50 a. m. EWT) 10 minutes before the landings from the naval units got under way.

First reports said that the landing met a minimum of German resistance.

dous force which came down from the skies. There were more than 14,000 air combat men of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force, equivalent to the line strength of two divisions.

One hour before the first troops landed the beaches were hit with a veritable avalanche of explosives.

It was, according to headquarters, "a continuous cascade of bombs, designed to knock out and render ineffective the invasion obstacles and the coastal defenses" of the enemy.

The entire strategic air force was composed of the 5th United States Air Force and Royal Air Force night bombers, the latter switched into a tactical task.

The Soviet high command communique reported strong German counter-attacks against Russian lines in the area of Raseiniai, in Lithuania. The Nazi counter-thrusts were hurled back by Soviet fighters.

In southern Poland, northeast of Krakow, German counter-attacks against Russian forces near Sandomierz were hurled back, and Soviet fighters moved forward to win new positions after the Nazi efforts were spent.

Fierce fighting raged near Sandomierz as desperate Nazis hurled armor and infantry into fruitless efforts to smash Russian positions on the west bank of the Vistula.

An Abbie radio broadcast, monitored by CBS, declared that Russian troops in the Baltic area had now cut all railway and communication lines converging on Riga.

The broadcast added that a strong German drive aimed at disengaging Nazi troops trapped in the Baltic states and opening a road to East Prussia had failed.

In the meantime, with both lines of traffic blocked there was considerable congestion until it was realized what the trouble was, and other cars detoured around the disabled machine. An auto pushed the disabled car out of the way, but the flat tire machine remained until the tire was replaced.

DRIVE IN SOUTHERN FRANCE IS LOGICAL MOVE TO BEAT NAZIS

the flank and rear, and if carried out in force would collapse every Nazi defense line west of the Rhine and force a retreat to the old French-German border with its Maginot line and west wall.

According to recent reports, there are in the neighborhood of 26 German divisions in southern France in the German First and Ninth armies. Originally these were under command of Nazi Marshal Johannes Blaskowitz, but Blaskowitz recently has been mentioned as one of the victims of the Hitler purge. Early German schemes for the defense of France placed the Nazi First army along the coast of the Bay of Biscay, from Nantes to the Spanish border, but according to recent information, its elements have been gradually withdrawn to central France.

The German Nineteenth army, said to consist of from eight to 12 divisions, was originally assigned to the defense of the Mediterranean coast. Probably the divisions of this army are those which are now facing the new Allied drive from the south.

FAITH WHY NOT HAVE THE BEST?

When one needs the service of a professional man or an experienced mechanic, naturally they want the best, and especially when there is no difference between the price of the good workman and the poor one, or an experienced professional or service man, and one not so experienced.

This is also true in equipment needed by different ones rendering service to the public. If good equipment, or good service, can be gotten at the same price as that not so good, one would be foolish not to select the better ones.

Quite often we have been asked how much more it will cost to have a funeral from our beautiful funeral home, than elsewhere, and they seem surprised to find that the charges are no more here than elsewhere.

The Line That Vanished

For more than two years the Goebbels propaganda mill has been churning out photographs and stories of an inner defense line guarding the approaches to Paris. Even if the Allies were to force a small beachhead in Europe, said the Nazi propagandists, they would be cut to pieces in their futile efforts to breach this tremendous fortress, variously referred to as the "Hitler line," the "von Rundstedt line" or the "Rommel line."

But like so many other things emanating from Germany, this vast and unbreakable defense line has proved to be only a myth. There are no fixed fortifications anywhere short of the Maginot and Siegfried lines.

Military observers in France report that apparently the Germans staked everything on a coastline bristling with guns and barbed wire. When that was penetrated, there was no other set line.

This does not mean that all the Allies have to do is to march into Paris. The German army is probably the best-schooled one in the world in the theory of counterattack, and it can be expected to put up many a desperate and costly skirmish on the road to the French capital.

Counterattack or no counterattack, the Germans can not hope to hold back the drive on Paris. For one thing, they do not have the ready manpower. For another, Allied air superiority is so telling that it is sapping away German army morale in France.

To date, Goebbels has not attempted to explain the smashing of the magnificent fortifications he dreamed up for the benefit of the master race.

Plasma Shot From Guns

In war, courage and resourcefulness count most. The commander of an American "lost battalion" surrounded by Germans on the Mortain sector in France staunchly refused to surrender. Food was supplied to the encircled battalion by diving P-47s, but, presumably because of the heavy enemy fire, the problem of getting plasma and medical needs to the surrounded men was a sticker.

But somebody got the idea of cutting the insides out of smoke shells, filling them with medical supplies and shooting them to the Americans from 155 mm. "Long Tom" guns. The scheme worked and even blood plasma for the wounded arrived. Only some of the morphine thus dispatched was too battered for use.

But one point about this story of heroism and ingenuity is that the plasma couldn't have been shot to the "lost battalion" if it hadn't been available. This is a broad hint to those who haven't yet donated blood to the cause of victory not to delay any longer.

Eternal Life With Father

The other day "Life With Father" played its 2,000th performance. This classic of American life, based on character and family relationship, rather than on plot, may chalk up a record for the longest run in the history of the American theater.

Nothing now on Broadway can compare with it in longevity. The nearest competitor is two years behind. Only two other plays still out-rank "Life With Father," and one of these probably will be surpassed next winter.

It is interesting to note the kind of play which seizes and holds the public fancy. The all-time record holder is "Tobacco Road." That delved into depravity among the poor whites of the South.

Perhaps that is the reason for its popularity. But if so, how account for the runner-up? "Abie's Irish Rose" is a compound of all the saccharine sentimentalities.

"Life With Father" has little resemblance to either of the other two. Based on the character of Clarence Day's father, it is a portrait of a family tyrant who somehow manages to be likable at the same time; of his wife and his red-headed kids, and of the little incidents which make up existence in an American home. It is realism of a different sort than found in "Tobacco Road," and while there are moments of pathos, there is nothing mawkish about them.

The only common denominator is the scene—these United States. One is upper middle class; another, the lower depths, and the third a flattering though largely inaccurate picture of American tolerance and good will. Americans take the hook with the real and, if it's spread thick enough, love it to the last curtain.

Speaking Of Gadgets

Right off the bat some bright persons had the answer—the correct one, too—"How old is Ann?" when that query had the nation groggy. And that one of how many eggs six hens laid in seven days if a hen and a half laid an egg and a half in a day and a half.

So what was there to be excited about in the report that Harvard had a new calculating machine, the invention of Commander Howard H. Aiken, USNR, former associate professor of applied mathematics at Harvard Engineering School?

Just as under-desk use of "ponies" is ignoble in passing examinations in foreign language, so the covert use of one of these little gadgets by an engineering student to make the grade would scarcely be a booster of morale. So—but hold everything! The tricky student would have a little difficulty in smuggling one of these devices into the examination room. The contraption is 51 feet long, is eight feet high and weighs 35 tons. And it seems there is only one of 'em. It took eight years to construct, cost $250,000 and here are some of the things it does:

It will take a row of 23 figures and multiply it by a row of 23 other figures in 5.8 seconds; it adds or subtracts up to 23 figures in 3-10ths of a second, and divides in 147 seconds. To calculate logarithms 59 seconds are required, and trigonometric functions take 88 seconds.

The very thought is dizzying. In the field of higher mathematics there are problems that would take years to solve that this machine can calculate in a few hours. It can make calculations that thus far have been beyond the power of mere man. Already it has found 11 mistakes in one mathematical formula that had been regarded as "standard" after having taken years to work out. What boons it will confer in many fields of science, in particular astronomy, is for the years to reveal.

Meanwhile, if Ann is a little reticent, there's no use in prodding the poor gal about her age, and those egg-and-a-half hens may as well be forgotten.

It will be Gay Paree again when the Allied troops begin celebrating there.

While stabilizing currencies, steps should be taken to speed up the intake and slow down the outgo.

American B-29's may be called roving ambassadors carrying diplomatic messages that Japan can understand.

And ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him sit thou here in a good place.—James 2:3

Washington Calling

By MARQUIS CHILDS

Problems On Home Front Are Extensive

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The Republicans will have to look hard to find anything to quarrel with politically in President Roosevelt's radio talk from Bremerlon Saturday night.

It was a geography lesson devoid of the magic Roosevelt has put into his radio addresses in the past. He gave it almost as though he were improvising, without any of the smooth cadences which have marked his delivery in other years.

The Press Associations reported that he deviated from his text to praise the newspapers and radio for keeping the secret of his trip, so he must have been reading from a prepared manuscript. But it had an impermanent sound quite unlike the Roosevelt of 1936 and 1940. Perhaps it was the fatigue of a long voyage, although in the past the president has been restored by a few days on a ship. Perhaps it's his intense preoccupation with the conduct of the war.

More Problems At Home

On his desk here he will find several urgent memoranda dealing with the problems of the home front. Within the administration there is increasing concern over the lack of preparation for the transition between war and peace. It is being realized at last that this lack is directly related to the scramble of workers to get out of war jobs and into something that seems to have a chance of permanence.

The George demobilization-unemployment compensation bill, just passed by the senate, would do all right if we could be sure there would be only moderate unemployment for a short time. But that's a gamble. It's too big a gamble to take.

If we go through a bad period, with millions of jobless, the provisions of the George bill will be pathetically inadequate. Whoever is president will have to start improvising WPA's and PWA's in order to try to check the downward spiral. The unemployed might not be as patient with such improvisation as they were in the '30s.

The alternative to the George bill was the measure sponsored by Senators Murray and Kilgore. It was so loosely drawn that even its backers didn't know what its limits were.

Needs Leadership

Here is a situation that calls for skillful leadership. The house starts this week on the same problem. The president can't afford to let a second chance go by default. In some respects, the task of the executive here at home is more difficult than that of the commander in chief directing the war abroad. There are human variables—congress, for example, to be dealt with tactfully and patiently.

On the military side you give an order; at home you make a request. Roosevelt has been operating in the military sphere nearly three years, with occasional attention devoted to domestic problems. Moving from one sphere to the other is not easy.

This is not to say that politics and statecraft are not part of the task of the commander in chief. They are. In that role the president must make political decisions on a high level—decisions which military men would not and could not make.

Most of us do not realize the extent to which President Roosevelt has directed the war. In his significant book, "The Time For Decision," Sumner Welles gives you a glimpse:

"To President Roosevelt himself was due both the conception of and the decision to undertake the invasion of North Africa as far back as the first months of 1942. After weighing the advantages and disadvantages of all the alternative means by which United States assistance could be made most effective toward hastening the defeat of Germany and Italy, he had reached the conclusion that North African operations were the best calculated to ensure the desired results."

I suppose when you make decisions on that scale, things here at home tend to look small and unimportant. But, as events a year ago or two from now are likely to prove, they are not small. They are, in fact, profoundly important.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 8:02. Sun rises tomorrow 6:07.

There is always room at the top for prices.

There is plenty of room at the top because so many want to get in on the ground floor.

The only men who seem to be coming out at the top are those whose hair is falling out.

Never put off until tomorrow what you can do today. There may be a law passed against it by that time.

CURIOUS CYNIC CANTS

The difference between out-laws and in-laws is that the out-laws risk you only once than quit.

Would there have been only ten commandments if Moses had hired six secretaries with a penchant for anonymity?

Each year it seems the bathing suit manufacturers try to make it possible for the fair sex to get tanned on spots we never before thought possible.

It used to be that only a certain kind of woman wore lip rouge—now, both the certain and the uncertain kind use it.

Money talks. In most homes it speaks the mother tongue.

Love is blind. That's why love has a marvelous sense of touch.

The dirtier the towel the cleaner the face.

Fewer accidents are caused by traffic jams than by pickled drivers.

Tom: "Harry is dressed to kill." Dick: "What? In those overalls?" Tom: "Sure, he's working in the slaughter house today."

In the course of life we shake many hands—and many people.

"An engineer of international reputation," according to the Engineering Record, "is a man whose articles are read in foreign countries but whose neighbors are not positive as to whether he drives a locomotive or tunes a piano for a living."

To which we add: "such is fame."

Overheard on the bus: "It is a very, very wicked world we're living in... why, even the pianos are no longer upright!"

Simplicity: a just judge seeks the truth; a corrupt one avoids it.

Our country is young. People who saw Washington may have children still living.

Man at his smallest: Feeling proud of a cat and cruel remark that shamed and humiliated somebody.

We reap what we sow. The people who get "free long letters" from friends are the ones who write that kind.

We don't question his ability, but we'd rather take any risk than admit that our nation has only one able man.

When we do things in a loose manner, we are apt to get into a tight place.

Do not neglect your opportunities. They will present themselves when you least expect them.

After you have finished dressing for each occasion, see that your belongings are neatly arranged in the room assigned to you. Do not leave this task to your hostess or even a servant, if she is lucky enough to have one.

Look your best at every moment during your visit and be properly attired for all occasions. Appear delighted at any program which may be arranged for you.

Consult your hostess before accepting invitations from any other friends you may have in her town, accepting none unless she is invited too. She has the privilege of accepting or declining, but you should insist. Never take sides in even the most innocent dispute or argument among members of her family. And after you have arrived home, be absolutely prompt in sending your bread and butter letter thanking your hostess for a delightful visit.

Question: Please pronounce: Aplicable.

Answer: AP-plik-able—not applicable. The first syllable "ap" is emphasized.

Political speeches should be made by private citizens. We get tired of hearing a candidate praised only by those who depend on him for their meal ticket.

Yesterday's tomorrow's smile: He is the kind of man who would say what he thinks and still be quiet.

Never prophesy. If you prophesy wrong, no one will ever forget it; if you prophesy right, no one will ever remember it.

Perform one duty well and your record will be an even greater duty.

Political speeches should be made by private citizens. We get tired of hearing a candidate praised only by those who depend on him for their meal ticket.

Tomorrow—Informal Home Wedding.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

THE UNCOOPERATIVE CHILD

"DEAR DR. MYERS:—I have a 12 year old boy and nothing I can do pleases him. When he's asked to do a thing he's pouty and cries about it. If he's forced to do it, he's grumpy and stomps out usually saying he always has to work. But even left alone to listen to the radio from 4:00 until 6:30 he's not happy, but fighting with his brother. He comes from school and goes to the radio and will sit there until supper if allowed to.

"We live on a farm, and when he's told to do his chores, there is a fuss. Even when he does them it's only a half job. When he's sent back to finish up it's a storm. Later it seems to me there is a storm every day and it's beginning to cause some trouble with the next boy.

"I'm afraid this 12-year-old is headed for serious trouble because of his attitude toward anything he doesn't want to do. We have tried to talk to him and find out what it is he does want. But he says he doesn't want anything, that there is nothing the matter with him and so on.

Mother Worried

"Our family doctor is in the Service, otherwise I'd take him to see and talk to him. But as it is I'm stumped and worried sick about him. If he keeps this up all summer I'm afraid it will be pretty miserable for all of us. A stamped envelope is enclosed."

My answer was substantially this: First of all, take that boy to a doctor, even if you must travel a great distance to do so. The programs he has been listening to come at a time when there are many chores to do. These jobs seriously interfere as he sees it. Naturally he escapes the jobs when he can and grows more resistant to your efforts to try to make him do his work. In the meanwhile, his younger brother helps you and earns your warm approval which, in contrast, implies your constant disapproval of this older boy—a source of brother-brother conflict. I am enclosing my bulletins, "Jealousy" and "Teaching the Child to Help at Home." Besides, these exciting programs probably make this older boy very jittery.

Therefore, you should announce to him that he may listen to the radio only for a definite period, say between 5:30 and 6:00, during which time you will not interrupt him, provided he has completed all his regular chores.

Use Active Measures

Don't argue about his chores. Let him know that if they are not done well, he will be denied even this radio period for the evening. Don't talk, ask. Keep no account of his pouting and sulking then. Once he knows some things are inevitable he will adjust himself to them.

Now and then you or his father should help this boy with some of his jobs. When he volunteers to help either of you in addition to his regular chores, express warm appreciation. It would be fine if he could have one or more calves, pigs or other livestock as his very own to care for. Welcome his visits to your home. Avoid comparing the boys. Try you and Dad to make this older boy feel worthy in the family group.

Can't you run it?" asked the dealer.

"Yes, I think I can," the minister said, "but I'm afraid I couldn't stay in the ministry if I tried much longer."

The minister, who had purchased a used car, brought it to the dealer.

Roosevelt-Churchill Rift Is Possible
Eight Months Elapse Since Last Confab
Impending Victory Exciting Washington

By HELEN ESSARY

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Washington insiders are beginning to wonder if the gossip of a rift between President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill, prominent several months ago, might now have some basis in fact after all.

As the weeks speed by, the president and prime minister seem to be establishing something new in the way of face-to-face discussions, as has been their practice since the outbreak of the war.

The two national leaders have not met in conference since the famed three-power meeting at Tehran in December, 1943—almost eight months ago. This, despite the fact that they announced publicly their intention to confer every three months because of the rapidly changing war picture.

It was recalled that after the Tehran conference, in which Joseph Stalin participated, there was gossip that the Russian leader and Churchill were at odds on the strategy to be pursued in the war against Germany, and that the president resolved the difficulties in favor of Stalin—much to Churchill's chagrin. The two English-speaking leaders have not met since that time.

Meanwhile, the long strides made in the war both in Europe and in the far east seem to provide ample bases for further strategy and diplomatic discussions at the highest level.

Effect Of Victory Felt

To administration supporters, who are loath to admit the possibility of differences between F. D. R. and Churchill, another reason for their failure to meet is offered. They point out that the president spent much of the winter months in illness and last spring was forced to take an extended rest away from the White House.

The ready effect of victory is beginning to rattle through Washington despite warnings of over-optimism from the nation's leaders.

That's one reason for the pressing urgency of reconversion legislation and the need for putting adequate safeguards into the law to protect the country's economy during the transition period. Through the halls of Congress is ringing the cry that Germany is almost through and we must be prepared.

There is good reason in Washington for optimism. From congressmen to government clerks, Washingtonians are headline readers. With each edition they see Germany taking her last blows. And the consensus seems

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 15.—Pennsylvania's women voters were expected to hold the political fate of national and many statewide candidates in their hands in the general election November 7. . . . For the first time in the commonwealth's history, women probably will turnout at the polls in greater numbers than men because most males of voting age have not reached their 38th birthdays are in the armed services. . . . Party chiefs expect women to outvote the civilian males despite the provisions for soldier balloting because not many servicemen were believed to be sufficiently interested in politics to return secret ballots. . . . The election will mark the seventh time in the commonwealth's history that women have been eligible to vote in presidential elections. . . . Suffrage was not extended to women until 1919.

Gerald Smith's threat to fight the state election bureau's refusal to enter "America first" candidates on the fall ballot has been viewed in political circles as an attempt to embarrass Republican leaders because Gov. Thomas E. Dewey repudiated his presidential endorsement. . . . Smith, a one-time associate of the late Sen. Huey Long, Louisiana Democrat, announced in Detroit he would test the bureau's decision in the courts. . . . Bureau officials said there was no chance that the courts would overrule them.

A. W. Castle, chief of extension education for the Department of Public Instruction, has advanced a proposal whereby English-speaking foreigners would receive adequate instruction to safeguard them and their possessions from swindlers. . . . He pointed out that smooth-talking confidence men find easy prey in foreigners unfamiliar with the laws and customs of America. . . . According to the 1940 census, there were 360,911 aliens over 21 years of age in Pennsylvania.

Ten years ago, approximately 50,000 aliens attended extension classes as part of naturalization. Castle said, but only about one-third of that number were enrolled today. . . . Castle's proposal would be financed with a small appropriation by the general assembly.

The Pennsylvania Home Rule association has editorially called upon township supervisors to give taxpayers a complete explanation of the board's activities in an easy-to-read report. . . . In the "Pennsylvania Builder," official Home Rule publication, it was pointed out that while supervisors were required by law to publish an annual statement, "the reports only give taxpayers a glance at the financial side of the picture." The editorial added: "No mention is made of what has been accomplished by the supervisors on expending township funds. . . . Many supervisors may have felt adverse to go into detail about their accomplishments lest they be accused of 'tooting their own horn,' but we can't see any harm. . . . In fact a lot of good might come of it if the supervisors were not quite so modest and a little more explicit in listing the work they have performed."

Something New For Margaret Henry Home

Drapes, Paint, New Linoleum Add Gay Note To Interior Of Children's Home

No one at the Margaret Henry Home for Children is planning to get sick, but just in case someone does, two colorful and clean hospital wards have been fixed up on the second floor of a cottage behind the home.

Five white metal beds line one wall of each of the rooms. Spreads are white or rose, and the wood-work is a soft white, contrasting with the lime-colored walls and dusty-rose draperies. Floors are covered with inlaid linoleum, something like the tannish-marbled linoleum in the kitchen and dining room of the home.

These hospital rooms, as well as the kitchen, linoleum, were furnished by Bundles for America last spring. The home itself has continued with its redecorating, adding red and white Mexican curtains in the dining room, and painting the wainscoting and other woodwork in the kitchen apple green with a black trim.
Bedrooms haven't been forgotten, either. The rooms of the younger girls have cool looking blue walls, and blue and white spreads on their white beds. Older rooms have pink walls, and all-white spreads. On the third floor, the boys dormitory has buff walls and spreads of white and bright red.

Even the office got new draperies this year—beige ones, about the color of the marble in the fireplace. The only difference is that the drapes have stripes of red and yellow flowers and the fireplace does not.

How American Taxpayers Were Saved $60,000,000 on Harbor Tugs and Equipment

BUY WAR BONDS

EARLY in the war there developed a tremendous need for tugs and power units to help speed delivery of supplies and equipment to millions of our fighting officers and men throughout the world.

In cooperation with the Army and Navy, our Chrysler Division, which had been building marine engines for many years, developed a marine tractor and a harbor tug (called the "Sea Mule"). We built them quickly and in large quantities, both of which were very important to the armed forces—and at a saving of $60,000,000 to American Taxpayers as compared to the cost of alternate equipment.

Meet JOE LAULETTA OBOE PLAYER

A haut boy keeps you in hot water all the time if you play one, according to Joe Lauletta, of Chicago, who appears with the "SPARLIGHT" Musical Cruise which docks in New Castle on Aug. 17 and plays at the Cathedral Theatre

A haut boy is the oboe, an instrument with two very delicate and very nervous little reeds vibrating at the mouthpiece and between the lips of the player. And, these little reeds are as unpredictable as the weather. The player is very nervous, too, says Joe. You're never quite sure you'll get a squeak or a full tone when you release the first blast of breath, but once under way the player manages to get pretty good control of the pesky haut boy.

Lauletta is a violin virtuoso formerly with the Chicago Civic Orchestra. He was also on the staff of the Schubert Theater Orchestra.

Armored columns, which apparently have broken through the German's last gun screen north of the city, are forcing the advancing Canadians, the dispatch said. The armies now have to progress only along downhill terrain to reach Falaise itself.

Escaped Inmate Has Given Himself Up

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 15.—(INS)—Mike Kalo, 29, who escaped from the state hospital for the insane at Weston during the tornado on the night of June 23, today voluntarily gave himself up at the Ohio county jail.

Authorities said that four days after his escape he appeared in the bedroom of Mrs. Betty Stilwell, 21, and attempted to attack her. Mrs. Stilwell, however, drove him out of her house by beating him with pieces of furniture.

Kalo was then traced to Canton, O., where he eluded his pursuers. Today he told authorities he had been working for a railroad at Cleveland and produced papers to prove his statement.

He was immediately taken back to the Weston hospital.

BRIEF NEWS OVER STATE

SCRANTON—To Naval Lt. Clement W. Buckley, a Scranton chaplain, fell the honor of dedicating a newly constructed chapel on Green island, north of Bougainville. The chapel was built and presented to the allies by natives.

STROUDSBURG—Monroe county lost its oldest practicing physician and lawyer in the death of Dr. Joseph H. Shull, 96, Shull, a native of Martin's Creek, was the publisher of the Monroe Democrat.

HOLLSOPPLE—Mrs. Winifred Reed was undergoing training as a WAC today to partially avenge the death of her husband, Staff Sgt. John Reed of Ottumwa, Ia., who was lost in a bombing mission over Austria. "I can't do much to avenge my husband's death," she said, "but I'm sure I can help."

ERIE—You can lead a cow to slaughter, according to Stanley Rewers, 25, a butcher, but you can't always follow through. One cow kicked at the crucial moment and Rewers was out.

Collect Paper On August 26

Plans Being Made For Another Collection In City And Environs

Waste paper of all kinds will be gathered in New Castle and adjoining townships on Saturday, August 26, it was announced today by the Salvage Committee of the Lawrence County Office of Civilian Defense. Newspapers, magazines and cardboard, all of them will be collected to aid in the waste paper shortage.

Not all plans for the collection have been completed yet but in the main the technique will be the same as that followed in previous collection campaigns. Trucks furnished by the Lawrence County chapter Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association and various merchants of the city will pick up the paper after it has been bundled and placed on the curbs by the householders. Boy and Girl Scouts will ride the trucks, assisted by adults and the paper will be loaded into box cars and shipped to paper processing mills.

For some reason New Castle and Lawrence County have lagged in the pounds of paper per person collected here. In June the average was only 5.9 pounds per person, which included both the special collection and industrial paper sales. Other counties in the state have gone as high as 14 pounds per person.

'Commando Kelly' Is In Hot Water

Famous Pittsburgh Soldier Fined $90 And Put On Camp Restrictions

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 15.—(INS)—"Well-wishers" were blamed today by Tech. Sgt. Charles E. (Commando) Kelly, Pittsburgh's one man army, for his court martial punishment of $90 fine and three months restriction to his company area at Fort Benning.

A Fort Benning infantry school public relations officer announced the result of the court martial, which charged that the 23-year-old automatic rifleman was absent without official leave when he over-stayed a furlough.

He was allowed to visit his family recently, but failed to return within the furlough time. He explained that he was delayed along the route by "well-wishers". Sergeant Kelly, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for his feats of arms in Italy, has been stationed at Fort Benning since July 11.

BANDITS PREFER CASH, NOT CREDIT

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—(INS)—Authorities today sought two young bandits who escaped with $1500 from the Consumers Credit Service. B. H. Feldman, manager, said one of the youths first posed as a possible customer. The two left the store, but returned later. As they entered an interviewing booth, Feldman related, one of the bandits said: "Let's have it all," and pointed a revolver.

One of the youths rounded up three employees and locked them in a washroom while the other looted two cash drawers.

War-time Canning Notes

By Miss Josephine Simpson
Home Economics Extension Representative

PLENTY OF PEACHES FOR CANNING AT HOME

With prospects of a good peach crop in Pennsylvania this year, homemakers should plan to put up as much of this fruit as is possible. Though fresh peaches will be plentiful, only one-third of the commercial pack will be available to civilians this winter.

Peaches are not a difficult fruit to can. They may be cold-packed and processed in a boiling water bath for a shorter time. The open-kettle method of canning is not always satisfactory because bacteria often get into the jar when food is transferred from kettle to jar and cause the food to spoil. Jars must be filled at the stove and some of the peaches will be overcooked when done the open-kettle way. Select firm, fully ripe peaches.

For best results, blanch small amounts at a time, placing them in a wire basket or square of cheesecloth and putting into boiling water for 1 minute. Dip into cold water, drain, slip the skins off—one peach at a time, slice directly into clean jar. This will help prevent peaches from turning brown. Fill the jar to within a half inch from top, cover peaches with sirup made with 1 cup of sugar to each 2 cups of water. Allow three-fourths to 1 cup of sirup for each quart of fruit.

To release air bubbles, run a silver knife inside the jar. Wipe off top of jar with a clean cloth, adjust lid, and seal according to type of lid used. Process pint jars 20 minutes and quart jars 25 minutes in the boiling water bath.

For hot-packed peaches, drop the peeled fruit into hot sirup, heat to boiling, pack hot into jars, and process in boiling water bath 15 minutes for both pints and quarts. Mold on canned peaches may be due to an imperfect seal on jar, or if open-kettle method was used, mold from air may have gotten into the jar while filling it.

Since he started on the musical cruise he has coined and used the stage name "Sparky," rather than the longer-handled Charles Edward.

He does bit parts and drives listeners to hysteria with his improvised ballad titled, "Swabbin' the Deck on Barge 16," with lyrics inspired by his experiences on a barge on the Mississippi River.

House Opens Debate On Surplus Goods Disposal Measure

Committee Takes Up Consideration
Of George Postwar Demobilization Act

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The House opened debate today on the Colmer bill for disposal of an estimated 60 to 100 billion dollars in government surplus property as the ways and means committee took up consideration of the Senate-approved George postwar demobilization act.

Two days of general debate were slated on the Colmer bill by the House rules committee, with the measure then thrown open to possible amendment from the floor. The Mississippi Democrat's bill would establish an overall surplus property agency headed by a $12,000-a-year administrator appointed by the president to supervise what has been termed "the biggest merchandising job in history."

The Senate, meanwhile, was marking time after passing last week the bill of Senator George (D. Ga.) creating an office of mobilization and reconversion, pending action of its military affairs committee in reporting out a surplus property measure. The committee was slated to meet today, but was not expected to take action until later.

RAINFALL HELPS LIMITED AREAS; HEAT STILL ON

Generally Intense Heat Continues
Across Nation, Rainfall In Iowa

(International News Service)
The first signs of relief from the searing coast-to-coast heat wave and the severe drought which already has cost millions of dollars in damaged and ruined crops came today with lowering temperatures and good rainfalls in limited areas. Generally, however, the intense heat persisted across the nation, with 100 plus temperatures common, and have been for days, and with food and feed crops literally burning out.

The corn belt in a large area of the midwest sweltered through its 75th day of drought as crops deteriorated rapidly, reducing hopes for the expected bumper yield.

Rain In Iowa
In all of the corn belt states with the exception of Iowa, where considerable rain has fallen, the corn crop was suffering severely. Soybeans were not podding satisfactorily, pastures were burnt out and hayfields were short and dying.

In Illinois, A. J. Surratt, agricultural statistician, said the drought was costing the farmers two million dollars a day.

In Illinois, Indiana and Ohio it was estimated the corn crop had been cut 83 million bushels by the first of August and much more since then.

Cooler Weather Coming
There were good rainfalls, however, in North and South Dakota and in Minnesota. These rains, the weather bureau said, would work their way into northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan and might be expected to become general when the cool weather which has hit the northern tier of states west of the Great Lakes spreads to the east and south.

Chicago again yesterday broke its all-time record for high temperatures for that date with a 99.

Las Vegas, Nev., reported a high temperature of 109; Fresno, Cal., 102; Oklahoma City 101, Phoenix, Ariz., 103, Cleveland 99, Detroit 99, New York City 96, Boston 97 and Philadelphia 92.

Urge Inventory Of Discharged Vets By State Draft Boards

HARRISBURG, Aug. 15.—(INS)—State selective service headquarters called upon Pennsylvania's 422 draft boards Monday to make an inventory of discharged servicemen to ascertain the number of veterans needing assistance.

Col. John M. Smith, deputy director, said each local board had been requested to notify headquarters of the number of men discharged from the armed services as well as whether veterans returned to pre-war jobs, had accepted new positions or were in need of federal assistance.

Smith pointed out that the state selective system was geared to aid former servicemen when they returned to civilian life.

"If there is anything that disfigures a discharged soldier it's being chased around to different city and county offices."

Meet LOU HITTNER REED INSTRUMENT ARTIST

Lou Hittner is the man with the "flock of flutes," who will be one of the featured musicians with the "SPARKLIGHT" Musical Cruise coming to New Castle on Aug. 17 to play at the Cathedral.

Pound for pound, Hittner with his 230 is the most popular man in the Coast Guard band. The similarity of his name to that of the infamous Schickelgruber of Germany cannot be the reason. He says it only prompts friends and strangers to do a bit of heckling.

During concerts band leader Rachford is often disconcerted when youngsters down front point and yell, "That's Hittler, the man with the piccolo." The good-natured Hittner only smiles and reminds all there are two t's in his name. He transports and plays more instruments than any other member of the Coast Guard band. These include several varieties of flutes, the piccolo, two or three saxophones and clarinets. He is also one of the band's arrangers.

FREE TICKETS

Obtainable at The Fleming Music Store, 19 N. Mill St., or V. F. W. Post Rooms, 126 1/2 E. Washington St. Doors open at 7 o'clock. No seats reserved. Admission by ticket only up to 7:45 o'clock. After 7:45 no ticket of admittance will be required for any vacant seats remaining.

MOSS

Moss is a very pretty plant. It makes a lovely green carpet on the ground. It fashions beautiful decorations for the trees.

Moss on the teeth is not very beautiful. It does not look very nice. It does not help much to make a good breath.

When a child is three years old it should be taught to use a tooth brush. It is very likely to become a habit.

Cavities should be looked for and attended to when they are small.

The Amazon River is navigable for 1,700 miles.

Pennsylvanian Plays With Band

Casper Cox, trombonist, a native of Pennsylvania, will be with the United States Coast Guard band appearing in New Castle on Thursday, August 17, to present the "Starlight" musical cruise at the Cathedral auditorium.

The Quaker state musician formerly played with Jimmy James' orchestra and worked in radio station staff bands.

The majority of the musical arrangements for the Coast Guard band require a strong trombone section and giants of homomom are always found in this corner. Cox, along with Wamsler, Pusi and Schile will add the proper tone color for sheer listening enjoyment, says conductor George Rachford.

Points Out Rules For Hiring Minors

Employment Manager Says Minors Ease Labor Shortage, But Regulations Must Be Kept

George R. Gettings, Manager of the New Castle office of the United States Employment Service states many inquiries have been received regarding the employment of minors. Mr. Gettings advises they are easing a critical labor shortage, but points out they should not be engaged in work too heavy or too dangerous. All minors and employers should understand the regulations affecting the employment of minors, and the amended rules which were established only for the duration of the War Emergency.

No minors under 18 years of age shall be employed without an employment certificate, and the employers must keep these certificates on file. Minors between ages of 14 and 18 who are employed before or after school hours or during school vacation must have Vacation Employment Certificates, and minors between 16 and 18 who are employed full time must have General Employment Certificates. Minors under 16 years of age may work forty-four hours per week when there is no school and when school is in session, the hours spent in school must be included in computing the total hours per week which are allowed under the act. No employment is permissible which interferes with school attendance. Employment is prohibited before 7:00 a. m. and after 7:00 p. m.

Minors under 18 years of age may work eight hours per day, four hours per week, six days per week, but continuous working hours may not exceed five hours without interruption of at least thirty minutes for lunch. Female minors may not work between the hours of 9:00 p. m. and 6:00 a. m., except telephone operators over 18 years of age.

There are a number of occupations in which minors are not permitted to work depending upon their age. Minors under 16 years of age are not permitted in mines, quarries, railroads and manufacturing establishments. Minors under 18 years of age are prohibited from operating an elevator, working in explosive plants, certain occupations in coal mines, establishments where intoxicating liquors are made or sold, and operating dangerous machinery.

The regulations have been amended in several instances for the duration of the present emergency to permit minors under 18 years of age to work as acetylene and electric welders on machines or processes in rolling mills, as section hands off the road bed of railroads and highways, call boys for railroad roads and on punch presses and emery wheels, if they are duly authorized.

Mr. Gettings advises the Department of Labor and Industry of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, has issued a pamphlet entitled "Regulations Affecting Employment of Minors," which lists in detail the occupations and establishments in which minors may not work.

SCHOOL BOARD TO MEET WEDNESDAY

New Castle school board will meet in regular session at the administration building on East street on Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, according to announcement of John B. Bechtel, secretary.

Where were you on the night of August 1, 1929?

Could you remember, if you were squirming on the witness stand? Probably not. 15 years is a long time.

Maybe, being August first, you were writing checks to pay the monthly bills. Do you remember how much you paid for electricity?

That's a tough one, too, isn't it? Actually, if yours is an average household, your electric bill may have been a little less than it is now.

But today you're getting twice as much electricity for your money!

How come? Well, while the price of electricity was coming down, your use of electricity was going up. You have a lot more electric appliances in 1944 than you had in 1929. But you enjoy all these added comforts at little, if any, added cost!

Even if you're hazy about everything else that's happened in the last 15 years, remember this wartime bargain. It's due to hard work by all our people — and sound business management.

Mullentowners To Meet On Thursday

Fifteenth Annual Reunion Scheduled For Cascade Park At 6:30 P. M.

Thursday is the day and Cascade park is the place where the former pupils of Mullentown will hold their annual reunion. This will be the 15th time that the former pupils of this section of the city will meet for such an affair.

The committee in charge is making extensive arrangements for the reunion. Major Guy Wadlinger, a former Mullentowner, will be the speaker of the day.

Dinner will be served in the grove at 6:30 p. m. and a complete picnic program will be carried out.

Another feature of this meeting will be the presence of the Stars of the West with their musical instruments, who have always made a hit with the "West Siders."

Bert Evans is president of the association with Billy Williams vice president and at a meeting held Monday night most of the arrangements for the affair were completed and the several committees promise that the reunion this year will eclipse all former gatherings.

Judging from preliminary estimates on the size of this year's apple crop, one of the worst fall shortages will be street corners and people who stand on them.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Seven Are Ruled Out Of Annual Gridiron Classic

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(INS)—Seven men chosen for the all-star collegiate football team to play the Chicago Bears the night of Aug. 30 at Dwyer stadium, Evanston, Ill., were sidelined today by Admiral Arthur S. Carpenter, commander of the ninth naval district, to take part in the contest.

All are in the naval service. Admiral Carpenter based his decision on a directive issued by the late Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox that no individual or team would be permitted to participate in any contest or game which would require absence from the station for 48 hours or more, exclusive of air transportation.

Those affected by the ruling are Bill Godwin of Georgia, Meredith Cushing of Cornell, Bill Daley of Minnesota-Michigan, Alex Kasper of Northwestern, Vic Schleich of Nebraska and Jim White and Ziggy Czarowski of Notre Dame.

Following Rocky Start Ivy Settles down: Flintall, Dunt And Kendra Star

Ivy Young settled down after a rocky start and handcuffed West Pittsburgh 14-4 at West Pittsburgh, Monday. It was the third defeat of Blackie Fundoots' gang and the defeat caused the non-active Moose to slide into first place while West Pittsburgh was relegated to third place with the Bronze on top.

Johnny Flintall led the hitters with a pair of triples and a single while Jack Dunt smashed out three hits. Gaby Kendra starred in the field with several spectacular catches and he had nine put-outs and three assists.

Rainey will pitch for the Bronze against the Alcoa at Marshall field and Manager Mike Diffley hopes to further flatten the Johnson leadership of the second half of the City Loop.

Joe Frigione Pitches Steady Eight-Hit Game As Machinists Ball Club

Joe Frigione hurled a steady eight-hit game yesterday as the I. A. Machinists handed the Universal A. A. an 8 to 6 defeat at Deshon hospital annex field. This was a postponed league game.

The Machinists clubbed Houston for 16 safe blows, with Joe Frigione having three to lead the attack. Fabian and Huff did the heaviest hitting for the losers, the former with two doubles and two singles for four of the eight blows allowed by Frigione.

Frigione fanned nine batters and walked five, while Houston whiffed four and didn't issue a pass.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Manager Lefty Akard of the Kingsport Cherokees of the Apalachian league has a "problem child" on his hands in Larry Brunkie, a 20-year-old southpaw from Chicago. The problem is where to play Brunkie.

The youngster reported as a pitcher, and there was nothing wrong with that classification for he won his first five starts for the club. Included in his string was a double-header win over Johnson City.

When Brunkie is not pitching he insists on playing the outfield. A very recent reading showed him batting a cool .533 and it's easy to deduct that he's no slouch with the club. Manager Akard doesn't have much choice, seeing that the kid is a sensation in both jobs. So there's nothing to do but pitch him in turn and let him rest up in the outfield.

Brunkie had a brief trial in the Wisconsin State League in 1942, and when that circuit failed to operate last year, Larry joined the Navy and served until recently discharged.

These are extremely busy days for Manager Scappy Moore of the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern League, for Moore is also football coach at the University of Chattanooga.

Recently, when the Lookouts were scheduled in Atlanta, the southern grid coaches held their annual clinic. Moore attended them in the daytime and bossed the Lookouts at night. The Southern League closes September 10, winding up the summer job of Manager Moore of the Lookouts. On September 11 he will be Coach Moore of the University of Chattanooga.

Speaking of baseball "barbers" you can include Pitcher Rex Cecil, recently acquired by the Boston Red Sox from San Diego of the Pacific Coast Loop.

During a recent game against Sacramento, one of Cecil's pitches glanced off the noshin of Shortstop Ralph Watson and sheared off the hair and a piece of skin the size of a silver dollar.

The injury wasn't serious, but it shows what kind of a zipper Mr. Cecil can dish up.

Two years ago, Bob (Peanuts) Riley was bat boy for the Wilmington Blue Rocks of the Inter-State League.

Today, he is a member of the club, assigned to the utility spot. Bob was an outstanding football, baseball and basketball star in high school and after graduating this year, decided to sign a contract with Wilmington. Two years ago he was picking up bats. Now he's swinging them.

Year ago today, Rudy York hit two homers as Detroit wins double-header, 5 to 4 and 3 to 2.

The golf practice range is open every evening and all the necessary equipment is available.

In addition to the golf range, badminton, archery and horseshoes are available at the sports center.

Basora Kayoes Jimmy Mandell

Referee Stops Hickey Park Bout In Second Round With Mandell Badly Beaten

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—(INS)—In about as lop-sided a fight as has ever been put on in the Pittsburgh area, Joe Basora, 155, of Puerto Rico, battered and pounded a helpless Jimmy Mandell, 156, of Buffalo, to a pulp at Hickey Park last night to win a TKO in 2:30 of the second round.

Mandell was game, but there was simply nothing he could do against the furious onslaughts of Basora's blows, which left him hanging on the ropes when the "fight" was called.

In the semi-final, Billy Bates, 132, of Pittsburgh, stopped Miguel Arroyo, 136, of Detroit, in 2:15 of the fifth round of a scheduled eight-rounder.

Church Golfers Battle Thursday

New Castle church golfers will go to the Castle Hills course on Thursday evening for another round of golf, the matches to start not later than 6:15 o'clock.

The Highland and Harbor teams are tied for first place with 14½ points apiece and face tough opponents this week—Harbor battling the First Presbyterians, the first-half champions, and the Highland men tangling with the First Baptists.

Mahoning plays the First U. P. and hopes to slip into first place while the other teams are battling it out. The First U. P. team is in third place and the Mahonings in fourth place. The other match Thursday will find the First Christians meeting the Epworth team in what should be a hum-dinger of a match.

The season will end with the games to be played Thursday, August 21.

Coach Bob Higgins Sends Squad Of 100 Through Workout, Two Injured

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 15.—(INS)—Two backfield stars on Coach Bob Higgins' 1944 Penn State squad were on the sidelines today with injuries as the veteran mentor sent 100 candidates through the season's first official workout.

A three-week layoff faced Marino, P. Allen Richards of Miamisburg, O., as the result of a shoulder injury sustained Friday, while Apprentice Seaman Bill Abromitis of Tamaqua, nursed a leg injury. Both were on the 1943 team.

Nine-Game Card
The Nittany Lions have scheduled a nine-game card opening September 30 with Muhlenberg.

Higgins, who planned no immediate cut in the squad, promised every candidate on the Navy-Marine-Civilian squad every chance.

"There's no way of knowing where we stand at this early date," said Higgins in scouting 1944 possibilities. "But in another week or two the top candidates should start to emerge."

In addition to the two injured stars, the other holdovers were Tackle Dick McGown, Philadelphia; Chuck Klausung, Wilmerding, center; Marino Marchi, Glassmere, tackle, and Frank Martens of Easton, guard.

Wampum Swamps Ellwood Team

Wampum Rod and Gun club picnic Saturday brought the Wampum and Ellwood City softball teams into annual combat, and the Wampum pounded Pike for.

The highlight of the game was in the second inning when Manager W. Strauss of Ellwood City blasted a homer with one man on to tie up the game at 2-2 but Coen tightened up and gave but three hits after that. Manager Rodamacher played sensational ball at second base for Wampum, having 14 assists. Center-fielder Tommy O'Brien had three superb catches for Ellwood City. Umpire Harold Parker did a fine job and used wonderful judgment.

Score by innings:

THREE FROM DISTRICT
Seek Golfing Crown

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—(INS)—It appeared likely today that at least three Pittsburgh district golfers would be going after the $40,000 prize money in the Tam O'Shanter, All-American golf tournament.

Edmond "Monty" Onorretta, of Schenley Park, was scheduled to leave for the west today, with Steve Kovach, who will make his pro debut in the event, planning to depart Saturday, while Wally Grant of Cecil, Shannon, has made arrangements to leave the steel city Monday.

LEGION ALL-STARS WIN FROM FANNINS

In a practice game played at the George Washington field Monday night the Legion All-Stars had little trouble defeating the Fannins of the American Legion Junior league, winning by a score of 17-4.

Most Price Movements in Market Today Within Range Of Half Point

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(INS)—Stock issues floated to fractionally lower levels today when traders continued their activities to routine operations.

Most price movements were within a range of a half point. Volume in the first hour totaled 140,000 shares against 157,000 the same time yesterday.

One of the few features in the market was a break of nearly a point in Canadian Pacific. Other rails were mixed with Santa Fe higher and Southern Pacific off. Utilities were small fractions lower and quiet. Johns-Manville, Westinghouse Electric and Murray Mfg. eased. Small gains were chalked up by Deere, Boeing, Schenley, U. S. Rubber and Sinclair. In the motors Graham Paige and Willys Overland advanced a quarter Chrysler gained.

Bonds were steady. Cotton moved to lower ground but grains advanced.

WAR TIME DROPPED BY NEW YORK CLOCK

NEW YORK.—(INS)—For two years, a clock on a roof-top advertising sign in Jackson Heights, Queens, has been ticking along conventionally on Eastern War Time. The other day, for no apparent reason, it suddenly reverted to Eastern Standard Time. The curious observers who phoned the clock's owners, Charles Henry and Sons, real estate, were told they had noticed the clock's reversion, considered it a good omen and decided to let it go along its own independent way.

WPB EASES UP ON FEW GOODS

Telephones, Cleaners And Electric Irons May Soon Be Made Again

By ERWIN D. SIAS

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—WPB Chief Donald Nelson's new reconversion order allowing limited production of peacetime civilian goods went into effect today under the watchful eye of the war manpower commission and with Nelson himself warning consumers not to expect too much.

His wings clipped by war mobilizer James F. Byrnes' directive giving WMC veto power over output of all such "less essential" items as lawn mowers, juke boxes and alarm clocks, the Nelson order gives manufacturers the "go-ahead" only in restrictive areas.

It permits small scale civilian goods manufacture only where it will not interfere with war production, the output of essential civilian goods or the rendering of essential civilian services.

No Large Increases

Here's what Nelson himself thinks about the possibility of rapid return to somewhat like pre-war civilian manufacture.

"For the time being it is not anticipated that any large increases in production of civilian goods will be possible."

Nelson hammered this fourth and last reconversion order through the mill about a month ago despite objections from military sources who feared resumption of some civilian items might jeopardize critical war production.

The following are among a host of items which will be given more favorable consideration for renewed production by WPB: vacuum cleaners, aluminum kitchen utensils, bed springs, metal household furniture, electric irons, lawn mowers, dry cell batteries, fishing tackle, golf clubs, domestic sewing machines, metal hairpins and bobby pins, cutlery, electric fans, fountain pens and mechanical pencils, alarm clocks, shotguns, oil burners, water heaters, typewriters, 35 MM. motion picture projectors, office furniture, auto tire chains, telephones, and "juke boxes" and amusement and gaming machines.

United Reports On Net Income

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—(INS)—The United Engineering & Foundry company today reported a net income for the first six months of 1944 of $1,357,147 equal, after preferred dividends, to $1.62 per share on 820,746 shares of common stock outstanding.

The company explained the net income was derived after all charges and federal income and excess profits tax and after provisions of $344,442 for employee's retirement plan and $200,000 for war contingencies. It is subject, however, to year-end adjustments.

This compared with a net income equal to $1.64 per common share during the first six months of 1943.

DOG STEALS SHOW

JOHNSTOWN, Pa.—(INS)—Baron, a shepherd-collie owned by Peter Christensen, had no long and well-deserved pedigree to take with him to the Johnstown Kennel Club show, but he was the star of the affair nonetheless. In a place of honor among the pedigreed dogs, beagles, pointers, setters and other show dogs entered in the event Baron merely exhibited his honorable discharge papers from the United States Army Quartermaster Corps attesting to 15 months service in World War 11 as a sentry dog.

DISABLED VETS
DOING FINE JOB

Most Of Disabled Soldiers Placed
On Jobs In New York Are Making Good

By JEANETTE SMITH
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Matthew Wagner, Jr., gets around very nimbly on his one leg with the aid of crutches, and does an efficient job as property and supply clerk at one of the New York navy yard's warehouses.

He doesn't have much time to think about the time he lost his left leg—the time his tank charged across the beach at Casablanca and hit a mine which blew it sky-high, killing two men and wounding the rest.

Only Survivor
Twenty-four years old and the sole support of his widowed mother and three sisters, Carmine was the only survivor of a platoon shattered by an 88 millimeter shell at Salerno. These men are among the more than 800 veterans disabled in World War II who are now at work at the New York navy yard. Although their fighting days are over, the vets are applying for jobs at the rate of eight a day—still eager to contribute to the war effort, it was revealed today.

"We're making every effort to put the disabled veterans in jobs they can do," said Rear Admiral Monroe Kelly, U. S. Navy commandant of the yard.

"There are two primary considerations: What is best for the man himself and where can he best be employed in helping the war effort. Obviously, a man with a back injury or a missing leg can't stand up at a lathe all day, so we try to place him at a job where he can sit down."

Can't Stand Noise
"A man with a medical history of battle fatigue or extreme shock, even though he may be all right physically, can't endure the incessant noise of the boiler shop, so he may go to the sail loft or one of the more quiet shops until he is more fully recovered."

"In no instance, however, do we coddle the men. They emphatically don't want it, we have found. These men who have made such sacrifices are interested in a chance to do a day's work on their own, where they can continue to help out in this war, and that's what we see they get."

The jobs for disabled veterans run into literally hundreds of categories, ranging from common laborers to machine operators, optical instrument assemblers, grainers, painters, sailmakers, shipfitters, welders, machinists, electricians, woodworkers, cooper-smiths, pipefitters, patternmakers and clerical workers.

Girl Struggles To Support Family

Nephew's Benefit $14.25 Monthly
Payable On Deceased Mother's Account

Another true story of the benefits social security gives, as reported to a field office of the Social Security board, is related below by Edward J. Sinder, manager of the local Social Security office.

Florence M. was a girl used to taking on responsibility and carrying through with it. The elder of two daughters in a poor family, she had early stepped into the working world. Her contributions to the family income had lightened the father's burden, and Kate, her aid sister, had been able to have privileges that had been denied to Florence. But Florence had not begrudged them. She had herself seen to it that Kate had a little money to spend and some good times. When Kate married at 18, Florence was as happy about it as though it were her own life's adventure that was opening.

Florence expected that once the wedding expenses were paid, she would have a little more to spend on herself, but it was not to be. The younger sister had scarcely left home when the father was stricken with paralysis. Florence took over the whole family responsibility. For ten years she supported the entire household. In the meantime Kate's marriage had turned out badly. He left her, and Kate had had to go to work to support her boy. Broken in spirit, she soon broke in health, too, and when little Billy was seven years old, Kate died.

Sister Takes Child
Florence immediately took the child under her care. To make ends meet, she put in Saturday afternoons working for another concern, took typing home to do at night. But, devoted as she soon became to Billy, the strain of supporting four people on a stenographer's salary was telling on her heavily.

One day she bethought herself of social security. Her sister had worked she knew, in covered employment. Perhaps Billy might be entitled to something.

"It isn't that I don't want to support Billy," she told the people at the Social Security board field office. "I loved my sister and I love her boy and want to keep him. But I have the old folks, too, and I can't seem to swing it. I'm more tired and worn out every day. I can't keep this up."

Child Eligible For Benefit
Two weeks later the Social Security field office phoned Florence and asked her to drop in. They had the claims papers ready. Kate, it seems, had paid social security taxes for six years and had died fully insured. As her child had been living with her and had been supported by her all this time, a monthly benefit of $14.25 was payable for Billy.

Florence was happier now than she had been in a long time. "You don't know what this means to me," she said as she left the field office. "This money was all I needed to make a go of things at home. I know I can carry through now."

The field office which serves the New Castle area is located at 306 Neshannock avenue. Mr. Sinder points out that information and service at this office are free to the public. Though this story relates to a family in need, he explained that there is no examination into any person's resources in connection with payments to widows and children under this federal family insurance program.

Registration Brought
Old Friends Together

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 15.—(INS)—The famed roadside parks of Ohio often serve the public in many odd ways, the highway department revealed in making one such instance known.

A few weeks ago Stanley Cherrington of Columbus, stopped at a park in Jackson county and signed the registration sheet. A short time later W. D. Baker of Portsmouth registered at the same roadside park. He happened to see Cherrington's name and wrote the following note after his signature: "I went to school with S. Cherrington at Kansas school house. Hello, Stanley."

This information was forwarded to Cherrington, who is employed by the state department of industrial relations. "You do not know how much I appreciate this information as I had lost track of Mr. Baker since our school days in the Kansas school district in Jackson county 43 years ago," Cherrington wrote the highway department. "I have often thought of him in years past but never knew where to contact him. This manner of getting in touch with him would not happen again in a lifetime."

The first wooden church was erected in what was then New Amsterdam in 1633.

CALENDARS RECORD
EGG-LAYING RATES

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 15.—(INS)—Poultry experts at Ohio State university do not claim that Ohio hens pay much attention to the poultry calendar hung on the wall of laying houses but the poultrymen do declare that flock owners get a lot of good information from the calendar besides have a handy means of keeping records of their poultry business.

The poultry calendar year begins October 1, to coincide with the production period of the new pullets, and the flock records are kept on forms which are a part of the calendar itself. The flock owner can see at a glance the production records for past days and can tell the effects of changes in feed or in management by comparing egg laying records of the birds in the different periods.

These poultry calendars are distributed through county agricultural agents and the 1945 version will be ready in a few weeks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(INS)—The Office of Defense Transportation announced today that no permits for the inauguration or extension of inter-city bus routes will be issued while the heavy-duty tire situation remains critical.

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 15.—(INS)—When it comes to wood carving, Henry Frey, of Erie, can stand up to the best of them.

In his home may be found sculptured figures that range all the way from tiny replicas of the face of a man to a carefully executed

Croatian handling an oxen-drawn plow. Frey, who is a bricklayer by occupation, acquired his skill over a long period of years. His lone tool is an ordinary pocket knife and he usually works with soft pine. He began as a whittler while a boy in Yugoslavia.
